MADISON OFFICERS HELP IN BIG RAID

Men's County Moonshiners Kill
Two of Federal Posse and Defy Authorities.

Governor Offers Reward of $500
(Associated Press)

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 11.—Gov. Morrow today offered a reward of $500 each for the arrest and conviction of Bob and Charles Ballard, who are being sought in connection with the deaths of Robert Duff and Dave Treadway, killed while attempting to arrest moonshiners in the mountains east of Mt. Sterling.

Hunt To Continue

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 11.—State Director Sam Collins has announced the hunt for the outlaws who shot and killed Agent R. L. Duff and Agent David Treadway, which the last two days will be continued until the gang responsible for the murders is brought to justice.

Sheriff Deatherage, of Madison county, and his son, Franklin Deatherage, took part in the hunt for the moonshiners who killed Duff and Treadway. They were the first ones to reach the hide-out where the two men were shot. The posse was searching the mountains. The father and son carried the slain young men over their shoulders back to the officers' rendezvous, and their clothing was covered with blood when they got home Sunday night.

They said that the two men who were killed, Duff and Treadway, were working in the mountains for a long time. They had been carrying on a campaign at the time of the raid. When they were shot, they were carrying a large amount of money. The father and son carried the slain young men over their shoulders back to the officers' rendezvous, and their clothing was covered with blood when they got home Sunday night.

Agent Duff, who was slain Saturday, was often aided with the officers in his county and section, and was known as a fearless man. His body bore 16 bullet holes. Sheriff Deatherage said, and everything was taken from it, including his watch, money and other personal effects.

After the shooting of young Treadway, officers said they saw two men running on top of the mountain. It was impossible to get a shot at them, however, and soon afterwards the officers withdrew with the body of young Treadway which was taken to his father's home at Mt. Sterling for burial. The elder Treadway is not an officer, but a business man of Mt. Sterling, who has taken a deep interest in law enforcement. He has often joined posses going into the hills after moonshiners and has given the officers much valuable assistance, they say.

Just what plans the officers have to clean up that section of Madison county have not been announced. Sheriff Deatherage says, Federal Agents Plannery and Carter came to Richmond Sunday night with the local officers. It is expected that every effort will be made to arrest the slayers of the two officers, though the officers admit that it is a difficult and dangerous undertaking. They say the moonshiners have every advantage of concealment in the mountains, and it is almost impossible to catch sight of them. They have been given evidence of their deadly aim from ambush.

The Early Story

Two scores of Madison county took their toll of prohibition agents Sunday afternoon when Dave Treadway, of Mt. Sterling, and his son, William P. Treadway, were shot and killed while carrying on a campaign at the time of the raid. The father and son carried the slain young men over their shoulders back to the officers' rendezvous, and their clothing was covered with blood when they got home Sunday night.

After the raid had ended, Sheriff Deatherage and another officer, James Unthank and Phillips, the posse decided that it was best to withdraw before the moonshiners were shot and killed. It was said that the posse could fire from the mountains and the officers were in the mountains, and they were carrying a large amount of money. The father and son carried the slain young men over their shoulders back to the officers' rendezvous, and their clothing was covered with blood when they got home Sunday night.

Arriving at the home of Jeff Ballard, father of the boys who are being sought, they found the house entirely deserted. Search of the premises revealed a still, about 1,000 gallons of mash and about 50 gallons of moonshine whiskey.

Moving forward in single file the posse started up the mountain in search of the Ballard brothers. They had searched through several miles of woods and undergrowth, when Dave Treadway got about 100 feet in front of the remainder of the group. A rifle shot was heard almost directly beside the posse, according to one of the members, and they dropped to the ground to locate the shot. It was not known that anyone had been hit by the shot until they had advanced a little further when the body of Treadway was found. He was dead with a bullet through the rear of his skull, and had evidently fallen without a groan as no outcry was heard by his companions.

The shot was evidently fired by a high power rifle from very close range. The posse had advanced a little further when another shot was heard close to the heads of two members of the posse. After a consultation it was decided to withdraw from what seemed to be a suicidal pursuit. It was stated.

Duff was killed when he and a party of raiders, including his two sons, Robert Duff, Jr., and Carroll Duff, prohibition agent, M. Carter, of Lancaster, William P. Treadway and his two sons, Robert and Dave, of Mt. Sterling, went to the State Creek section and were endeavoring to force an entrance into a cabin where moonshiners were hiding. PAYNE SPEAKS ON AMERICANIZATION

Closing Program at Eastern Normal
for Education Week
Saturday.

J. Howard Payne, superintendent of City Schools, gave the final address at the Eastern Kentucky State Normal School Saturday morning in observance of National Education week. He spoke on "Americanization," a subject which, he said, was not confined to the war period only but was vital enough to be of interest at all times. "America is a Utopia to which all nations have come. For this reason Americanization will always be important. We must make the environment of such as to further the development of the best in all those who come to make America their home. To do this we must be right ourselves to be the best examples to the immigrant."

"Americanization," declared Mr. Payne, "is not a tangible force, but is a spirit, caught from our poetry, books, rivers, mountains and traditions."

"This spirit was for a time lost in the full life led by Americans. As former President Elliott of Harvard puts it, we have gotten away from the personal sense of responsibility to our country which was so keenly felt by the Puritans. It took the World War to bring it back to us so we must catch and keep it as it leaves us again."

Mr. Payne said that the boys and girls should be caught this personal responsibility in school and thus to have interest in the community welfare and the good of the country.

There are a few outstanding characteristics which Americans have always had, in love, achievement, optimism and co-operation. They are likewise distinguished by ideals of liberty, not license, but intelligence, said Mr. Payne, to see that there are some limitations to liberty, equality, pursuit of happiness and democracy. How to attain these ideals is the question of Americanization. Mr. Payne suggested the only solution was that co-operation, intelligence, morality and prosperity.

Americanization should teach the meaning of our flag. To the eye of the imagination it is our country, said Mr. Payne, which is the embodiment of freedom and liberty, power, prestige and glory, made so by the great deeds of our soldiers, the tireless efforts of our statesmen and the harmonious co-operation of all. We should keep the flag unstained by living up to the high ideals of our country which teach an elishness, sympathy and gratitude.

TANKAGE PROVES EGG PRODUCER

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 9.—Animal protein, fed to hens either in the form of tankage, sour milk or semi-solid buttermilk is a big item in keeping the winter egg basket full, according to results obtained during the year just past by S. J. Howard, a Henderson county farmer, living near Corydon. Mr. Howard, along with 48 other farmers situated in different counties of the state, has just completed the records which he kept on his farm flock for the year in cooperation with the extension division of the College of Agriculture to show the value of recommended practices in feeding and taking care of hens. Being without tankage two days last January caused his flock of 167 White Leghorns to lay 320 eggs less that month than they laid in the previous month, according to one of his reports. His flock was the third highest producing one out of the 47 for the year ending Nov. 1, each of his hens having laid an average of 164 eggs during the 12 months.

Mr. Howard, who started his records with 167 hens in his flock and ended the year with 71 hens, kept a mash made of bran, shorts, hominy hearts and tankage before his birds at all times. They also were given a grain feed of corn and wheat. After the records had been running for several months, he added oats to this grain feed. In one representative month during the year, he used a total of 112 pounds of bran, 135 pounds of shorts, 157.5 pounds of hominy hearts and 67.5 pounds of tankage in making up his mash. The same month he fed a total of 7 bushels of corn and 225 pounds of wheat. Although the tankage was left out of this feed for only two days one month, the egg production of the flock dropped 320 eggs before the hens could be brought back into laying after the tankage again was added.

Like many other successful farm poultrymen, Mr. Howard hatches his chicks in an incubator and broods them under a colony brooder, thereby keeping his hens for egg laying only. His work in cooperation with the college has made it possible for him to give his neighbors many other practical pointers in the feeding and care of hens so that they will lay more eggs.

An abiding faith in Kentucky's Democracy prompts us to say that the rank and file of the party will support a primary nominee for governor quicker than it will a hand-picked one.—The Glasgow Times. Yes, but usually not but professional politicians who have nothing else to do but run for office will become candidates in a state-wide primary. And the results of the past few state primaries have shown that less than 50 per cent of the voters take enough interest to participate. The Daily Register believes that with an old-fashioned state convention next year can select a representative ticket of capable men who will lead the party to an old-time victory.

CAMDEN'S BULL IS GRAND CHAMPION

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 6—America's Grand Champion Hereford bull and Hereford cow are from Kentucky! "Hartland Woodford" is the name of the bull and "Lady Woodford" is the cow. They are owned by Senator J. N. Camden of Versailles, and won their laurels at the American Royal Live Stock Show in Kansas City last week.

"Hartland Woodford" was the sensation of the show. He is not yet four years old; but is a Hereford giant, weighing 3100 pounds, and said to be the heaviest bull ever exhibited in an American show-ring. Great crowds assembled around his stall in the Royal barns at Kansas City last week to view his great bulk. He is thickly covered with smooth flesh, carries his lines well and possesses remarkable smoothness for his size.

"Lady Woodford," the Grand Champion female, is a sweet feminine heifer in two-year-old form. She is thickly and evenly fleshed, has great breadth and a wonderful front, and is one of the best type which is the ideal of the beef cattle breeder. She was shown at America's leading shows last year and has never been defeated.

Senator Camden's Herefords made a great showing at the Royal, as did the Herefords of Michael E. H. Taylor, Jr., of Frankfort, Colonel Taylor and Senator Camden brought home the majority of the Royal prize ribbons to the Blue Grass state.

The Taylor herd of Herefords captured 32 prize ribbons, including the Junior Championship of the bull "Woodford 1304." Taylor entries took first prize in five classes. In the class of Senior Heifer Calves 45 entries were shown—the largest group of individual Herefords ever exhibited in an American arena. The Taylor heifer, "Della Woodford 129th" captured the blue ribbon in this great class. In addition, the Taylor Herefords carried off two second prize ribbons and a third. Farmwife Shoots Sow Eating Her Chicken Danville, Ky., Dec. 7—Finding a savage sow in the poultry house devouring her thoroughbred chickens, the wife of a farmer, living on the Stanford road near Danville, secured his hunting gun and blew the sow's head off. When he returned from the field he followed her suggestion to slather the offender for winter meat.

CREAM MARKET TENDING HIGHER

(Swift's Produce Review) The demand for dressed poultry has not been brisk and selling markets have reflected the condition quickly, somewhat lower prices prevailing. Quite a large surplus has been placed in storage for sale later.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture is making an exhibit at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago December 22, which shows the benefit of culling the flock.

Two pens of live chickens are shown. One lot of 12 hens was not culled, and ate in one year 900 pounds of feed, costing $20.70. The 12 hens laid 103 dozens eggs during the year. Contrasted with this lot is one of 8 hens which were culled and which laid the same number of eggs but ate only 600 pounds of feed at a cost of $13.50. The lot of 12 hen that was not culled ate 50 per cent more than the lot that was culled and produced no more eggs. The extra cost of feed, however, is but one of the larger costs. Others are the extra labor, extra housing room and extra capital invested.

To enable the poultrymen to cull their hens properly, the exhibit gives the points to be looked for when determining a poor layer or a good layer. These points are quickly learned and are means of increasing the profits from poultry.

Arrivals of live poultry at Eastern markets have been lighter this week, following the Thanksgiving trade, but as quite a few cars were carried over from last week, there has been a full supply available.

The U. S. Dept. of Agriculture in its preliminary report shows stock of butter and eggs in cold storage December 1 as follows:

Butter 1922 47,805,000 lbs. 3,258,000 cases
1921 65,129,000 lbs. 2,303,000 cases
Showing a shortage of 17,324,000 lbs. of butter and an excess of $55,000 cases of eggs.

Deliveries of cream are about normal for this season of the year, but the market tendency has been higher and this has been reflected in the higher prices for butterfat throughout the producing sections. Consumption of butter is not as heavy as a few weeks ago and any further decrease in consumption or increase in production will have a tendency to make for lower prices.

The supply of fresh eggs continues light. Considering the demand, prices have reacted a little from the high point, and buyers are taking a more conservative position, due to prospects of some increase in production throughout the West and Southwest.

Treating Breeding Ewes Cuts Down Worm Trouble

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 8—Stomach worms, present in almost every flock of sheep in Kentucky, annually cause a loss to farmers and breeders of the state, according to L. J. Horlacher in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture. Farmers can take a big step at this time of the year to wipe out this trouble by treating their pregnant ewes with copper sulphate. If the ewes are free of worms before the lambing season comes, the chances of the lambs getting worms are considerably lessened.

A solution of made copper sulphate, commonly known as blue-stone, is the best one to use in treating the ewes. The solution is made by dissolving one-fourth of a pound of powdered copper sulphate in a quart of boiling water and the diluting this to three gallons. This is enough to dose 100 ewes. In treating ewes, they should be kept off feed the night before and then drenched the following morning, after which they should be kept up for from six to eight hours longer. The dose for each ewe is about three and a half ounces or seven tablespoonful. In case the ewes are in a badly run down condition, they should be given a treatment. One-fourth of a pound of the salt dissolved in water is enough for each ewe.
